FIRST MEETING OF IMPORTANCE HELD IN SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN

Alexander Irvine of New York City Speaks to Gathering on Street

TELLS WHY ALL SHOULD VOTE

Says Civilization Demands That Women Be Given Ballot and That They Couldn't Do Worse Than Men.

Virtually the first meeting of any importance in the fall campaign for woman suffrage in this district was held Monday evening on Fifth street, with Alexander Irvine, a famed preacher of New York city as the speaker. Dismal weather conditions prevailed, but the ardor of the fair-sized assemblage was unspooled, even when an uncomfortable drizzling rain began to fall.

"Modern civilization demands that women be given the ballot," proclaimed Mr. Irvine, plunging deep into his subject early in his talk. There were but a handful present when he uttered his first words and conditions seemed discouraging. It wasn't long until he was surrounded by a large circle of sympathetic listeners.

Mr. Irvine presented some of the arguments often fondly offered by the antis. "Some claim," he said "that the polling booth is not a fit place for a woman to go—that it is too dirty. Well," he demanded, "who made it dirty?"

He stated that one argument of the antis was that a woman doesn't know enough about politics to vote, that they would make conditions worse by bothering. "If women would make conditions worse than they are already, then they ought to take the ballot from everybody," he emphatically declared. "One reason some of them don't want women to vote is that some of these old-time politicians couldn't boss them. Imagine some of those notorious old Pennsylvania bosses rising from their graves and leading a bevy of women to the polls to do as they told the same that they used to lead a gang of men."

Mr. Irvine made but a short talk, being forced to take the 8:30 o'clock train to Donora, where he made a later speech. Today he is scheduled to speak at both Coal Center and California. At other points in the county other meetings are being held. The first meeting was held in Charleroi in the interest of suffrage when a few days ago Rev. Davis of Pittsburgh spoke to members of a church on the hill.

Friday Mrs. Paul Lawrence Dunbar, wife of the noted poet, is to speak on the streets under the auspices of the local suffrage league. Next Monday evening Mrs. Henry Suttman, leader in suffrage work in Monongahela will speak at St. Jerome's Lyceum. Other meetings and rallies will be arranged within a few days following until election day on November 2. No great claims are being made by women here, but they note much sympathy with the suffrage movement.

DESCRIBES LIFE IN TURKISH CITY

Robert Mountsier Writes
For London Publication
After Recent Visit There

SPEAKS OF ENGLAND'S WORK

Brilliant are the descriptions which have appeared from time to time in New York and London publications, as written by A. Robert Mountsier concerning life in warring European countries. Mr. Mountsier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Mountsier of Washington avenue, a graduate of Charleroi high school in the class of 1904 and at the present time is literary editor of Judge, the famous New York publication. Last May, Mr. Mountsier left for Europe. Since he has toured Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey, writing as frequently as possible of conditions he found in each land visited. His contributions won eager attention, especially in London. Mr. Mountsier wrote the following "The Turkish Capital in War-Time" for the London Daily News and Leader after a visit to Constantinople, from where he has just recently returned to London:

"Constantinople, the Golden Horn, the Bosphorous, the Marmora and its islands! What a paradise the English would have made of it all!"

FACTIONS DISAGREE ON PADLOCKED CHURCH

One Breaks In To Worship and Now the Other and Opposing Faction is Contemplating Bringing Action in Trespass

Breaking padlocks to get into a church for the purpose of holding religious services constitutes sufficient reason for legal action in trespass, according to the view of one faction in a church squabble at the colored Second Baptist church in Monongahela. The church is rent with dissensions so that already several have been placed under arrest under various charges.

Trouble originated when Rev. L. C. Garland was deposed as pastor. What Rev. Garland termed his board of deacons was the ruling body of the church until he left for West Virginia. When he left a faction of the congregation took matters in their own hands and appointed a pulpit board to supply the pulpit. This board selected Rev. William Moore of Pittsburg. The board of deacons considering themselves still dictators chose Rev. Talton of D. note to supply the pulpit.

Some sort of a ruction took place, with the result that on last Saturday night the faction headed by the pulpit board padlocked the church doors and windows. They announced services at 11 and 7:30 o'clock Sunday, the usual time.

But the deposed board was not asleep. Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock the padlocks of the doors were broken, it is stated, and Rev. Talton started his services. His faction held the fort until Rev. Moore and his cohorts appeared on the scene. Then they walked out.

Now the pulpit board faction is preparing to bring action in trespass and affairs are much in the air. Efforts are being made to patch up the differences, but as matters stand now court proceedings of a serious nature are imminent.

MUSICAL AUXILIARY BEGINS FALL SEASON

Work of Different Composers Studied Through Rendition of Several Songs—Large Attendance of Members at Meeting.

The first musical program of the Musical Auxiliary's fall season was presented Monday evening at their second regular meeting. Attended by more than 30 members the meeting was held in the piano room of A. G. Lewis at 405 Fallowfield avenue, the room having been neatly decorated for the occasion. To each member of the club Mr. Lewis presented a yellow chrysanthemum, following a short address.

Hostesses were Misses Grace Chester and Marie Heupel. A brief business session was presided over by Miss Della Jacobs, president, then the program was presented. The program consisted of a paper, "German Lieder" by Miss Mamie Rockwell, a Schumann song by Miss Elizabeth Frew a Schubert song by Miss Mary Glunt, a Brahms song by Mrs. A. G. Lewis a Franz song by Miss Ethel Barth and a current event paper by Miss Marguerite Whitlatch. The program was especially attractive, being well arranged and providing ample opportunity for study and contrast of the work of the different composers. Accompanists were Miss Bertha Haines, Miss May Barth and Mrs. P. Floyd Chalfant.

Following the rendition of the regular program, several Victrola selections were played and there was a short rehearsal of songs by the Musical Auxiliary chorus under direction of Miss Bertha Haines, with Misses May Barth and Bethel Bowman accompanists. The next regular meeting of the auxiliary will be held on Tuesday evening, November 2 instead of Monday November 1.

FULLY 40 MERCHANTS TO ATTEND COUNTY CONVENTION FROM HEL

REPORTS OF BURGLARIES ARE UNFOUNDED SAY THE POLICE

Investigation Fails to Disclose Any Evidence That Night Marauders
Were at Work.

Fear superinduced supposedly by knowledge of recent happenings it is believed is at the bottom of recent reports of burglaries. One was from the neighborhood between Third and Fourth streets along Cherry alley, the robbery alleged to have taken place Sunday night. The police could learn nothing through their investigations excepting that a gun had been fired by a child. Monday night it was reported that burglars were at work trying to get in a Fallowfield avenue home between Seventh and Eighth streets. Investigation by the police failed to produce evidence of the actual visitation of thieves.

MOOSE NOMINEES WITHDRAW NAMES

Candidates Named in County
by Washingtonians Decline to Make Run

MONDAY LAST DAY TO QUIT

Monday was the last day for filing withdrawals on the part of any of the candidates for district or county offices named at the primaries on September 21.

Henry W. Temple has already filed his withdrawal as a candidate for congress on the Washington party ticket with the secretary of the commonwealth at Harrisburg.

Monday withdrawal certificates were filed with county commissioners by C. M. Greer and John O. Watson, as candidates for commissioner on the Washington ticket; also by W. H. Alexander for treasurer, by James Heffran for coroner, by A. V. Lewis for prothonotary, by T. J. Underwood for sheriff, by W. S. Lockhart for clerk of courts, by T. H. W. Fergus for district attorney, by R. W. Wolfe for director of poor, by George S. Chaney for county surveyor, by C. S. Ritchie for register of wills and by W. W. Hawkins, as a candidate for director of poor, on the same ticket.

This will eliminate a county ticket for the Washington party, unless the Washington party committee fills the vacancies, which is not considered at all probable. In the precincts where there are no local tickets named by the Washington party the names of that party will not appear on the ballot; but there are some 79 precincts in the county where nominations have been made on this ticket.

Candidates for local and precinct offices have until Thursday, 12 days prior to the election to file their withdrawals with the county commissioners.

SICK CHILDREN AT SCHOOL.

A day spent in school by a half sick child may result in a week's serious illness. If, as so often happens, the slight indisposition proves to be the beginning of some communicable disease, the result is that the other children in the school are exposed and those who are susceptible will follow in turn, says State Health Commissioner Dixon in his weekly health chat.

School authorities are naturally anxious to secure regularity of attendance on the part of the scholars and many parents feel that they are simply doing their duty in forcing children to go to school who complain of not feeling well. It is much better for a child to lose an occasional day's schooling than to risk bringing on an illness and exposing others.

Children's recuperative powers, generally speaking, are superior to those of older people. Proper rest and care will often ward off serious illness but this requires care and insight on the part of the parents as the children themselves are not apt to call attention to their condition until they become seriously ill.

Loss of appetite, feverishness, lassitude, discoloration of the eyes, are all indications which should be watched as symptoms of indisposition.

The work which children lose in the schools they can make up far more readily than what they lose in health. Satisfactory mental progress cannot be made unless health is first considered and school authorities should realize that the amount of time lost is far greater owing to the added possibility of spreading communicable disease when half sick children are permitted in school.

When children are ill their playmates should not be permitted to go to see them until it is absolutely certain that they are not suffering from some communicable disease. Colds are communicable. Parents should see that their children do not visit other youngsters who are ill and infants should never be taken into houses where there is danger of their contracting illness from children who are not well.

It is distressing when church congregations formed for the express purpose of cultivating in the hearts of humans the devout spirit of a peaceful, gentle, lowly Nazarene, find it within themselves to depart from their established precepts so far as to divide and fight among themselves. At Monongahela it is relatively one faction padlocked the door of their church to keep the opposing faction from worshipping there. Upon this seeming insult and characteristic declaration of war, the opposing faction in great glee broke down the latches and entered, to worship as they pleased. Each faction was and is in a schismatic mood. The greatest commandment is love thy neighbor, and we've yet to find the man pugnaciously wearing a chip on his shoulder displaying any great affection for his neighbor.

Justice should ever be tempered with mercy, but there is such a thing as tempering it with too much mercy. Justice is administered for the good of a community and not for the individual pleasure of a few units. If a man commits a crime he is made to suffer, that society, as a whole may be benefitted, and not that the individual pleasure of a few be satisfied.

The expenditure of $1,240,000,000 is contemplated by the National Administration next year, according to recent estimates. That is nearly twice the amount of our income and will necessitate new taxes or a large bond issue, either of which is not pleasant to contemplate.—Exchange.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A man entered a restaurant and looked for coffee. After he had finished his repast he called the waiter and said: "Waiter, this coffee has its good points and its bad points. One of its good points is this—it has no chicory in it."

"Yes, sir," replied the waiter quite gratified. Visions of a handsome tip floated before his mind's eye and he rubbed his hands gleefully.

"But," resumed the customer, "its bad points is this—it has no coffee in it."

A little boy, who had been taught to report promptly his misdeeds, sought his mother with an aspect of grief and repentance.

"I broke a brick in the fireplace," he announced on the verge of tears. "Well, that is not beyond remedy," smiled the mother, "but how on earth did you do it?"

"I was pounding it with father's watch."

A corpulent negro woman came into the office of Judge George I. Griffith, of Kansas City, Kan., one morning and inquired for the "judge."

"What can I do for you?" asked the judge.

"Is yoh runnin' foh judge agin?" she asked.

"Yes, I'm trying to get the nomination," the judge replied.

"What's the 'sideration foh votes dis yeah?"

"What!" almost yelled the judge, beginning to understand the drift of the conversation.

"Ah means," explained the negro, "is votes with one dollah or two dollahs dis 'lection?"

"Are you aware that it is a serious offense for a person to sell his vote?" sternly demanded the judge.

"Ah, don't 'zactly undahstan' yoh langwidge, judge but ef yoh means yoh ain't buyin' 'em, dat's all right. Ah believe yoh's no politishun no-how." And with this contemptuous parting shot she left the office.

The Symphony Quartet, an organization representing the Conservatory of Music of Ithaca, N. The personnel of the quartet is Miss Laura Price, pianist; Miss Nadia London, reader; Christopher Hayes, tenor, and Edwin Frost, violinist; all of whom are heard as performers of exceptional ability.

The athletic department of high school must be self-sustaining, insistently declares the school board. Hence the present concert is being arranged by the athletic association. Traveling expenses, cost of paraphernalia, together with the cost of sending a team to represent Charleroi high school at the annual field meet at Washington are items which entail the outlay of a large sum of money during the season. Gate receipts are insufficient, as a general rule to defray expenses.

ents—but not in Germany—said to me as we stood in the English cemetery in Skutari, facing a wealth of colour in water, city, and sky.

"And now see what the Germans are trying to make of it with German beer, German 'influence.'"

I had seen the effects of German officers, German sailors, and German workmen upon Constantinople, and I, an American, as a matter of blood and water looked to the bits of English life left among Byzantine ruins and Turkish houses of wood by members of a regime who talk through their fezes of "Turkey for the Turks" and imagine that they are partly realizing their dream by appropriating for their own use the homes, automobiles, and yachts of English and French residents.

My first bit of English life came to me with the accompaniment of a cup of tea—English breakfast tea at five o'clock. It was a beautiful home, but despite the fact that everything English is supposed to be taboo in Constantinople, many a Turkish official had cast envious eyes upon it. By a method which need not be described here it was saved intact for the feminine members of the household; the men of the family were interned in the interior of Asia Minor.

"Do you take sugar?" asked my hostess, with a cube of sugar poised over my cup.

"Three, please," I replied.

"You must forgive him," said a friend, "he has been in Constantinople only two days."

And it was only a few days more before the city authorities took a census of the sugar in Constantinople because of the scarcity of the supply. However, a waiter at the hotel where I was staying continued to place five pieces before me every morning. Never again did I go to tea and ask for three sugars; I always carried an excess supply with me.

Although it now flies the flag of the American Red Cross, the most English place in Galato is the British Seaman's Hospital. There several English nurses are caring for wounded Turkish soldiers—or at least they were when I left. Everything about the hospital, even the wounded, shows the effects of the English touch, which taken with the services of the American surgeons, has resulted in the best conducted hospital in Constantinople. There are no English wounded in this hospital.

"Yavash, yavash!" "Slowly, slowly!"—it is to be heard everywhere in Turkey and since it had wasted so much of my time, I never imagined that I should sometime cry "Yavash, yavash!" But I did, and all because of five British prisoners who were being marched down Ohdschy Mussa-street.

With two English ladies and a member of a certain diplomatic body I was in a carriage which turned into Ohdschy Mussa-street about one hundred yards in front of five British soldiers being marched along by four Turkish guards. Scattered around them were about fifty Turkish civilians, their red fezes bobbing up and down as they craned their necks this way and that to look at the captured men.

The driver insisted upon going rapidly, and I kept tugging at his coat-tails, and saying, "Yavash, yavash!" At length after a violent tug and a threatening look I got the carriage slowed down, with the result that prisoners and guards finally came opposite us. It would not do for me to say anything—I had twice been arrested for less than talking to British prisoners—so I caught the eye of one prisoner, shook hands with myself, and had a return smile before any one of the guards could catch a glimpse of what was going on.

And those five men, two of them without any covering on their heads, marched along under the blazing sun. They were on their way to the interior in Asia Minor, perhaps to Afion Karahisar, where there are some English prisoners.

"Look at this girl who is talking to that Frenchwoman," said a Constantinople friend as we were strolling along the Grand Rue de Pera late one afternoon.

I looked and saw a girl dressed in Turkish costume. Through the thin veil that covered her face I could distinguish flashing black eyes and features of no little beauty.

"Quite pretty for a Turkish girl," I remarked to my friend.

The face behind the veil turned quickly at the sound of my voice, and my friend, when out of the girl's hearing, said, "The only thing Turkish about her are her dress and her husband. It's strange that he, the guard, isn't with her, for she's English."

Within five minutes it so chanced that my attention was again called to an English girl dressed in English fashion.

"That is Miss—. Her father, who was a well-known member of the English colony here, was sent to an internment camp in Asia Minor shortly after Turkey entered the war. Now he is home a hopeless wreck, driven insane by his sufferings."

In—, near Constantinople, I was the spectator of the arrival of two Turkish officers at one of the most beautiful English mansions in Turkey.

"You must leave this house at once," said the captain. "We need it as quarters for officers."

"I will never leave this house," declared one of the old Englishwomen who were in it. "You have no right to take it, and you know that—has given orders not to touch it."

She was glorious, magnificent.

The Turkish captain backed away with a "We are going to have this house." Fortunately, there was present a visitor who got into touch with a certain official, and the status of the house was established—until another call from the officers.

Other houses, English and French, had not escaped the Turks. One of them, the — mansion, which was built and furnished by its owner, an Englishman whose name is known from one end of Turkey to the other, is now a barracks for Turkish soldiers. What little remained after the house was looted is nothing but wreckage. The floors were once hard wood; now they are kindling wood.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amend section eight, article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law, but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenues in excess of the interest on said debt or debts, and the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted. Provided, That a sinking fund of their cancellation shall be established and maintained," so that it shall read as follows:

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law, but any city, the debt of which on the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, exceeded seven per centum of such assessed valuation, and has not since been reduced to less than such per centum, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation. The city of Philadelphia, upon the conditions hereinafter set forth, may increase its indebtedness to the extent of three per centum in excess of seven per centum upon such assessed valuation for the specific purpose of providing for all or any of the following purposes,—to wit: For the construction and improvement of subways, tunnels, railways, elevated railways, and other transit facilities; for the construction and improvement of wharves and docks and for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves and docks, owned or to be owned by said city. Such increase, however, shall only be made with the assent of the electors thereof at a public election, to be held in such manner as shall be provided by law. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation a credit, where the work resulting from any previous expenditure, for any one or more of the specific purposes hereinabove enumerated shall be yielding to said city an annual current net revenue; the amount of which credit shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment. Such capitalization shall be accomplished by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest, and sinking-fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so to be excluded or allowed as a credit, may be prescribed by the General Assembly.

In incurring indebtedness, for any one, or more of said purposes of construction, improvement, or reclamation, the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking-fund sufficient to retire said obligation at maturity, the payments to such sinking-fund to be in equal or graded annual installments. Such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for the interest and sinking-fund charges accruing and which may accrue—thereon throughout the period of construction and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred, and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking-fund charges, as required by section ten of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of such work.

HIGH SCHOOL AMONG LEADERS IN ATHLETICS

In athletic endeavors, as well as educationally Charleroi high school is putting itself on a plane with the best high schools in western Pennsylvania, a fact demonstrated by the football game with the Washington high school on the local field Saturday, as well as numerous preceding games of football and basketball during other seasons. The institution on the hill enjoys an enviable reputation in athletic circles through the achievement of its representatives of the past, and this season's representatives gave promise of adding to the number of trophies at present on exhibition at the high school building.

Charleroi high holds the championship of the Monongahela Valley Interscholastic Association and among the experts who have been graduated from the local halls of learning, whose ability have been recognized by more prominent centers of education are John Gaut, Williams college, Williamstown, Mass., who captained and played center on the basketball team which won the championship of the Monongahela valley two years ago; Austin "Cy" Stahlman University of Pittsburgh, one of the best athletes ever known in Charleroi; James Wagner and Ray Speers, State College, two of a kind and hard to beat, "Little" John Hugus, University of Pittsburgh, who was always sure of a place in whatever event he entered; and last but not least, Harry Carson of W. & J., captain of last year's track team and a sure winner at pole There are others who might be mentioned but lack of space forbids. To keep up the work various schemes are planned, including a concert by an Ithaca quartet Thursday evening of this week.

Change Produced by War. To an unprecedented extent, the purchasing power of the British Isles has passed into the hands of women because of the war. Wives of men who have enlisted are receiving all, or a great part, of their husbands' pay, as well as the allowances made in many cases by their employers. The latter amounts to about one-half of their regular pay. With these funds the women are better supplied with money, to spend in such manner as they see fit, than they ever have been before. One result, landlords say, is that they are receiving their rents more regularly. Another result, no doubt, is that the money is being spent in a different way than it was when the men chiefly or wholly directed its expenditure.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 15, 1906, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease is Lime Starvation" by Dr. John F. Russell, who states: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation."

"Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of physiological importance, but if the salts are not in organic combination it is difficult to accept that the salts can appropriate the food."

Years of widespread use confirm us in the belief that the success of Eckman's Alternative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchitis is due in large measure to its content of lime, which is another ingredient as to be easily assimilated by the cells.

Do not think this has had much to do with the results obtained in cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alternative.

As it contains no opiate, narcotic or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist will order for you or you can send direct to Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia.
